regulations, policies and procedures in person, by mail or over the phone to a wide range of individuals including attorneys, government agencies and the public; provides instructions to customers regarding the use of specialized equipment to search for records and documents.

3. Explains homeowner exemption programs' eligibility requirements; evaluates program applications and determines eligibility based on well-defined, pre-established criteria; responds to and researches complaints regarding determinations; works with other divisions and the Tax Collector’s Office to ensure that exemption accounts are adjusted appropriately.

4. Assists professional appraisal staff by compiling, organizing and distributing assessment and/or appraisal-related documents and information; researches, tabulates and evaluates data and information; may assist with personal property appraisals by using well-defined resources and tools to establish value based on objective criteria; maintains statistical reports.

5. Performs basic tax assessment activities by reviewing and evaluating basic real property transactions; researches property rolls to verify changes in ownership and transfer of property.

6. Operates personal computers, computer terminals and other equipment to research databases, documents and records and locate requested information; provides and/or sends copies of requested documents according to Office policies and procedures.

7. Indexes recorded documents; reads and reviews documents to determine document type; assigns computerized indexing codes to documents based on standardized coding references; enters document data into the indexing system; releases and transmits files to public computer stations as appropriate. May review and file marriage licenses and amendments in accordance with applicable laws.

8. Performs complex data entry to correct, verify, update, and maintain databases, including the tax assessment roll; enters data into fields, corrects errors and researches/retrieves data and statistics.

9. May serve as a lead worker by directing and monitoring the work of a small group of subordinate employees and serving as a technical resource regarding the more complex work issues in the unit. May be required to provide training to entry level classifications.

10. Types and prepares various items such as letters and forms; proofreads and checks typed materials for accuracy, completeness and compliance with well-defined policies and procedures.

11. Receives, opens, stamps and distributes mail; tabulates, records and processes fees received.

Title: Assessor-Recorder Senior Office Specialist
Job Code: 4215

INTRODUCTION

Under direction, performs difficult, specialized and technical office support and customer service work within the Assessor-Recorder’s Office; receives, examines, and records documents; provides complex technical information to the public regarding the recording, archiving, and retrieving of legal documents; assists appraisal staff with researching, gathering and compiling assessment-related information, including structural classification and property identification data for tax appraisal purposes; may serve as a lead worker by scheduling, assigning, directing and monitoring the work of subordinate staff on a regular basis; and performs related duties as required.

DISTINGUISHING FEATURES

This is the senior-level class of the Assessor-Recorder support series. Incumbents work under direction to perform the most difficult and specialized clerical and technical duties that require advanced knowledge of technical administrative policies and procedures, most of which are unique to the Assessor-Recorder’s Office. Duties emphasize advanced and technical level activities pertaining to document examining, property ownership and transactions, change in ownership assessment determination recommendations, transfer tax assessment, complex exemptions, and real/personal property appraisal services. Incumbents perform assigned duties with substantial independence, applying advanced knowledge of technical assessment and recording requirements, policies and procedures to make decisions and perform assignments.

This class may be distinguished from the lower-level class of 4214 Assessor-Recorder Office Specialist because that is the class where incumbents perform journey-level, less complex duties. This class also may be distinguished from the Appraiser job series because 4215 incumbents do not perform valuation duties, nor are they required to hold a State Board of Equalization certification.

SUPERVISION EXERCISED: May serve as a lead worker to direct, monitor and provide training to a small group of subordinate employees.

MAJOR, IMPORTANT, AND ESSENTIAL DUTIES

According to Civil Service Commission Rule 109, the duties specified below are representative of the range of duties assigned to this job code/class and are not intended to be an inclusive list.

1. Performs highly specialized technical work and analysis requiring in-depth knowledge and a high level of independence involving review and processing of real property transactions and/or complex document recording processes within the Assessor-Recorder’s Office; receives, examines, evaluates, and records deeds, reconveyances, releases of liens, judgments, marriage certificates and various legal and other documents; interprets various codes, statutes and ordinance in examining and recording a wide variety of complex documents; performs detailed and complex document examination to ensure sufficiency, completeness, jurisdiction, appropriateness for recording, and/or adherence to legal codes and state and county recording requirements; provides follow up with customers and other parties as appropriate to resolve problems; refers customers to other Office staff and/or outside agencies as required.
2. Ensures compliance with the Transfer Tax Ordinance by reviewing change of ownership transactions; requests and analyzes documentation of proof of exemption; and collects transfer taxes in real-time, in accordance with the Revenue and Taxation Code and State and local tax laws and ordinances.

3. Searches deeds to determine real property ownership; receives and verifies records supporting property statements;

4. Receives and collects payments for a wide range of complex service fees based on Revenue and Taxation codes as well as state and local tax laws and ordinances; issues receipts and accounts for money received by balancing records. May receive and collect payments of recordable documents; balance cash receipts and receivables; prepare balance sheets and processing forms; and post receivables and credit appropriate accounts.

5. Provides complex technical information in person, on the phone, and via email and regular mail regarding policies and procedures pertaining to recording requirements, assessment and recording laws, regulations, policies and procedures to attorneys, government agencies and the public.

6. Performs technical tax assessment activities by reviewing and evaluating real property transactions such as grant deeds, quitclaim deeds, affidavits of death, court orders, final decrees of distribution, leases, foreclosure sales deeds and other documents; researches property rolls to verify changes in ownership, transfer of property, boundary discrepancies and overlap or breaks in the chain of title for real property; makes recommendations regarding property transfer tax and other assessments, based on State and County laws and codes.

7. Provides technical assistance to professional appraisers pertaining to real property appraisals; collects structural classification data in the field or in the office for residential dwellings, apartment complexes, commercial concerns and industrial firms; notes construction characteristics related to foundation, exterior, interior, plumbing, lighting and heating; determines shape classifications using perimeter and square footage calculations; takes photographs of structures.

8. Gathers property and/or business data to determine welfare tax exemption status; gathers and tabulates data to determine appropriate exemption percentage allowable; inspects property based on application information and other data; and prepares inspection reports; explains exemption programs’ eligibility requirements; evaluates program applications and determines eligibility based on well defined, pre-established criteria; responds to and researches complaints regarding determinations; works with other divisions and the Tax Collector’s Office to ensure that exemption accounts are adjusted appropriately.

9. Researches and compiles property value data; identifies comparable sales; searches deeds to determine delivered prices; provides technical support for cost analyses and/or income analyses for both real and business/personal property; receives and verifies records supporting property statements from public accountants for client firms; researches, gathers and tabulates data from financial and operating statements.

10. Explains appraisal procedures and policies to builders, contractors, real estate brokers and the general public; serves as a technical liaison to various agents regarding appraisal processes.

11. Maintains and updates statistical data; prepares and maintains complex statistical reports.

12. May serve as a lead worker by directing and monitoring the work of a small group of subordinate employees and serving as a technical resource regarding the more complex work issues in the unit. May be required to provide training to entry level classifications.

13. Operates personal computers, computer terminals and other equipment to research databases, documents and records and locate requested information; provides and/or sends copies of requested documents according to Office policies and procedures.

14. Types and prepares a wide variety of correspondence, forms and complex documents; independently initiates correspondence pertaining to areas of assignment.

15. Performs other technical administrative duties; attends meetings and trainings; may serve on committees and task forces.

IMPORTANT AND ESSENTIAL KNOWLEDGES, SKILLS, AND ABILITIES

Knowledge of:
- Advanced policies, procedures, terminology and practices pertaining to technical county assessment and recording practices
- Laws, regulations and requirements that apply to county assessment and recording administrative procedures
- The tax roll process, including the relationship between the Assessor-Recorder, Controller and Tax Collector’s offices
- Advanced office practices and procedures, including methods of researching, gathering, tabulating and reporting technical data
- Basic laws, principles and practices pertaining to public administration
- Principles, practices and methods of customer service
- Business data processing principles and practices, including the uses of computer equipment
- Correct English usage including grammar, spelling and punctuation
- Basic arithmetic
- Advanced record keeping principles and practices

Ability to:
- Perform a wide range of technical duties pertaining to county assessment and recording activities
- Review, evaluate, record and interpret complex information
- Evaluate customer eligibility for welfare exemption programs
- Accurately process property transactions using appropriate codes, determining correct percentages for properties with multiple owners, accurately reflecting event dates and valuation dates, and inputting reference notes for complex transactions
- Research a variety of sources to gather data pertaining to historic, reproduction and replacement costs for property whose value could be impacted by the results of such research
- Interpret, apply, and explain complex policies, procedures, forms and concepts
- Perform detailed and accurate office work
- Provide courteous and effective customer service to a wide variety of people
- Organize and maintain data, files and records
- Prioritize work and perform multiple activities
- Type letters, forms and other documents
